A NEW AMERICAN INDUSTRY. CULTIVATION OF FLAX AND JUTE IN

THIS COUNTRY. A new source of agricultural production has recently been developed in the South, one which may before long encourage and bring into active operation a valuable branch of manufactures heretofore monopolized by the Old World, and especially Great Britain. The progress that has been made in the manufacture of cotton and woolen fabrics has indeed. been great since the war, and it is considered surprising that no attention has ever been turned to the manufacture of fibrous products, strated that flax can be cultivated with profit in this country, Ohio alone producing in 1870 Comforts. Terms: One hundred deliars and under eash: over that amount acredit of sixty days, with interest at 5 per cent., satisfactorily secured. Catalogues now ready and can be had on application to the switchness. CATHERINE & CUEBARY, Austa. CATHERINE & CUEBARY, Austa. CATHERINE & CUEBARY, Austa. PX WASH. B. WILLIAMS, Aust. fore it has been considered that the cost of cleanaing the flar fibres from the barks, &c., would be too great to make the work remuserative. France and England, during the same year, imported nearly $53,000,000 worth of flax, and America might have contributed somewhat towards this supply if proper care had been taken.

Hemp, jute and ramie would also form staple products if properly cultivated as the sail of products if properly cultivated, as the soil of America, and especially the Southern States is peculiarly fitted for it. Over $5,000,000 in gold is annually sent out of this country for the pur-chase of hemp and its manufactures, while $4,398,481 was sent abroad in gold to buy jute butts, and the manufactures of jute. Alto-gether $30,741,959 in gold was sent out of the ufactures which could have been produced at home; while at the same time America shut Heself out of a market with England and France, into which countries nearly $95,000,000 of the raw material was imported for manufacturing purposes—the farmers of the West and else-where actually wasting the material which would supply a portion of the trade. In 1870 the United States raised $7,133,094 pounds of flax straw, a portion of which was turped into flax moss for uphoisterers' use instead of hair; whereas, under skillful treatment, the whole amount of money sent absord in 1873 for raw flax might have been retained in the country, and half the additional money saved that was during the year sent abroad for manufactures.

Only 12,457 toos of hemp were raised during 1870, and it might easily have been 50,009 tons, which would not only have given more than was required for the American market, but also have left between 20,000 and 30,000 tons should not be able to compete with Russia in supplying Europe with raw flax, and with India and China for the supply of jute, being and ramie for manufacturing purposes, besides growing a sufficient quantity to supply all the wants of the American manufacturers. With the introduction of the machinery before alluded to, a great amount of labor and time can be saved in the preparation of the raw material, and, as a natural consequence, mills will soon be established for the manufacture of all those articles of linen which are now imported so largely. It is believed that crash and coarse linens could be made in this country at the present time at a cheaper cost than the imported goods, and yet leave a good profit for the producer and manufacturer. The linen works of Scotland were first established 100,000 inhabitants, had sixty-one linen mills, containing 170,532 yarn spindles, and 6,709 power looms, giving employment to 35,020 persons; yet in 1870, the United States, with over 40,000,000 of inhabitants, had only eleven linen works, working solely upon imported flax, while millions of pounds of material were being wasted continually. The subject is about to be brought before the United States

THE ADVERTISING STAGE. There are degrees or stages of growth in stages in the development of towns. The two server will make a very fair guess at the character of a town for business, population and for in given conditions of municipal growth. sheet, nor at the character of the editoriais, find the editor alluding to other editors by name, retailing private lokes, putting Tom's chickens and Dick's baby, and inviting gifts of any good thing that happens to be in sea-son. The paper is little more than concenpects changes in the town. He finds cuts dis-appearing; advertisements compactly "set up" and frequently changed; long lines of brief an-tonneements which merely bint some point of general interest are placed and paid for like other private matters; when the paper is regarded as precisely the same to patrons that a dry goods store or grocery is; when the publisher is placed on the same level as the carpenter and the blacksmith, and paid as they are for what he does. A "church social" expects gratuitous notices that would cost five dollars as advertisements, and thinks them amply real for with a bowl of soid over some and saw them up, plane them and make a table of them for the meeting, would anybody think of paying him with cold victuals, or thanks? Hardly. The publisher does as much in a different way. Religious gatherings con-cern the public not at all, as news, and if it be deemed worth while to notify the public of them, they should pay for the notice. When them, they should pay for the notice. When a paper has reached the stage in which nobody, individual or society, expects to do gratuitous atvertising for particular advantage, and never thinks of claiming something for nothing, it has reached its full growth, and it don't do it

A correspondent of the New York Horaid do scribes the following episode of the recent fight on the Washita between General David son and the Kiows and Noconce Indians;

The Indian squaw, Tait-toe, the only one who, with her fine boy of about seven summers, had taken refuge with us, had. like Mike Gordon, bravely performed her mission. Under instructions from General Davidson, she went Indians who had fied their settlements in con-sternation and had kept clear of the fighting to the United States troops would protect and be-friend them. The brave little woman (rotund in form, about five feet three inches high, and with a shrewd, contracting, deliberative eye,) as soon as she was satisfied of the reliability of General Davidson's intentions, being sup-plied with a borse and some rations, mounted at dusk and went out to the hiding places of the refugees, remarking, however, with some apprehension, that she would go, but supposed the Klowas would kill her. Here is a lesson was more than a Joan of. Are's fortitude when she signified that for her people she would go out and risk her life, showing once more that beautiful and unintimidated spirit of self-sacrifice which has crowned her sex the world over, to the shame of ungrateful and selfish man. This brawny, dark-skinned angel of peace returned and reported that she had for-tunately met the chiefs of the absent tribes while in council, and that they signified that they went come in under a flar of truce.
